

The daily paper of the key city of Southwest
Arkansas.

Hope

Star

THE WEATHER

Cloudy with showers tonight and Tuesday and colder
Tuesday.

VOLUME 31 — NUMBER 13.

(AP) — Means Associated Press.
(NEA) — Means Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.

HOPE, ARKANSAS, MONDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1929.

Star of Hope founded 1899; Hope Daily Press,
1927; Consolidated as Hope Star, January 18, 1929.

PRICE 5c COPY

Pantages Found Guilty of Assault On Dancing Girl

Verdict for Conviction Is Returned After Lengthy Deliberation.

SENTENCED FRIDAY

Assailant of 17-Year-Old
Dancer Required To Remain in Jail.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24. — (AP) — Alexander Pantages, wealthy theatre owner, was convicted on a charge of assault on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, by a Superior Court jury last night.

The jury recommended that Pantages be sentenced to the state penitentiary for the term prescribed by the law (one to 50 years) but urged that clemency be extended. The jury took the case into Friday, and passed of seven women and five men. The trial lasted nearly a month. Frank E. Franz, foreman of the jury, delivered the written verdict to a bailiff, who presented it to Superior Judge Charles Fricke for inspection before it was read.

Judge Fricke set Friday, as the day for formal pronouncement of sentence. Joseph Ford, defense attorney, said at that time he would present a motion for a new trial. Pantages was remanded to the custody of the sheriff, and taken into the prisoner's room for preparation for formal booking and cell assignment in the county jail, where he will be required to remain.

The multi-millionaire vaudeville magnate sat with his head resting on his hand as the counsel table while the verdict was read. He grew noticeably pallid, but walked to the prisoner's room with a little assistance from Jerry Geisler, one of his attorneys. Geisler said the case would be appealed if a new trial was denied.

"I'm going to fight it out," Pantages said.

With the exception of Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of the convicted man, who herself was convicted of manslaughter recently, and is awaiting hearing on a petition for probation, all the Pantages family was present. Carmen Pantages, daughter, remained in the prisoners' room, where she heard the proceedings, but could not be seen. Mrs. Dixie Martin, adopted daughter of Pantages, jumped from her seat in the courtroom at pronouncement of the verdict, and ran into the prisoners' room with her hands over her face. There she and Carmen began weeping hysterically.

Rodney and Lloyd remained beside their father and walked with him to the prisoners' room. Mrs. Pantages is at home ill, having collapsed when she heard the verdict in her own case, and not fully recovered, and had not been told of her husband's fate.

The jury signaled for a bailiff at 9:20 p. m., indicating it had reached a verdict and hurried preparations were made to convene court.

Testimony Reread

The entire afternoon and part of the night was spent in hearing a rereading of the testimony of Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, who accused Pantages of attacking her in a little conference room adjoining the showman's office, and also the testimony of three physicians who testified for the defense.

Upon returning to the courtroom shortly before noon to call for the rereading, the jury foreman, Frank E. Franz, inadvertently let slip a syllable that was taken to mean one juror was holding out for acquittal. He said:

"We wish to inform the court that we have not yet arrived at a unanimous verdict. A member of the jury wants to hear some more of the evidence. This one, voting for acquittal."

At this point, Judge Fricke interrupted Franz with the observation that the court was not interested in how jurors voted until a verdict was reached.

Blytheville Girls Win U. D. C. Honors

Take First and Second
Prizes In Convention Essay Contests.

BLYTHERVILLE, Ark., Oct. 28. — Mildred Louise Moore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Moore, won first honors in the state essay contest of the U. D. C. on a theme with the subject: "The execution of David O. Dodd." Second honors were also won by a local girl, Elizabeth Burnette, daughter of Mrs. L. M. Burnette.

The essay written by Elizabeth Burnette had already won the first prize in that county contest for which she received $5 in gold.

Mrs. W. M. Taylor, historian of the Elliott Fletcher Chapter of the United Daughters of Confederacy, was in charge of the activity for this city.

The prizes were awarded after the essays had been judged at the state convention in Hope last week.

Alleged Kidnapers Jailed After $25,000 Ransom is Paid

Three men arrested by Detroit police as the kidnapers of 5-year-old Jackie Thompson, for whose return a ransom of $25,000 was paid by his father, a wealthy Detroit real estate dealer, are shown above. From left to right are Tony Dagaunno, James Fernando and Emil Souave. Officers claim they found $5000 cash in Fernando's pocket when he was arrested. Below is Fernando's home where the kidnapped boy was held prisoner for 24 days. At the left are Police Lieutenant Norval W. Marlett, who was Inspector Robert A. MacPherson recovered Jackie and returned him to his parents. Jackie is shown below the lieutenant.

Perfect Plans for Co-op School Here

One of Five In State To Open In Hope Next Week.

Five district cooperative marketing schools will be held in Arkansas November 4 to 8 by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, cooperating according to an announcement made today by J. S. Knox, extension economist, marketing.

The purpose of these district schools will be to discuss the more recent development and changes in cooperative marketing, and the Federal Farm Board as it relates to Arkansas. The schools will be held at Van Buren, Conway, Tuckerman, Hope and Warren.

The school will convene at Hope November 7, at 9:50 with introductory remarks by Lynn Smith. The subjects discussed include development in cooperative marketing, organization and operation of commodity associations, handling and marketing the sweet potato crop cooperatively, aims and progress in the cooperative marketing of cotton, advantages in large scale cooperative marketing associations, and cotton classing. Speakers on the program are B. B. Derrick of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., G. L. McMurray, district agent, Agricultural Extension Service; J. S. Knox, extension economist, Agricultural Extension Service and E. S. Burgess, Cotton Growers Cooperative Marketing Association, Little Rock.

Farmers in this section who are interested are urged to get in touch with Lynn Smith, county agent, regarding the details of this meeting.

Traces Found of Man
1,250,000 Years Ago

NEW YORK, Oct. 28. — (AP) — Traces of prehistoric man in England believed to date back 1,250,000 years are described by Dr. Henry Fairchild Osborn, director of the American Museum of Natural History.

They are found in Red Clay beds of East Anglia near Foxhall, a hamlet on the east coast not far from Norwich. They are stone implements, roughly shaped, including pieces of flint shaped, apparently for scraping.

Dr. Osborn says the tools are positively of human origin and that they indicate men of sufficient intelligence to use fire.

Burglar Makes Lock To Thwart Thieves

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 28. (AP) — A convicted burglar in the Ohio penitentiary has perfected a lock to avert thefts of motor cars.

Lawton Hileman, 23, was an Akron electrician, "sent up" for burglary and larceny. During his odd moments he made a lock, intended to function automatically when the ignition is turned off.

W. W. Duckett Off To Little Rock Hospital

W. W. Duckett, pioneer citizen and business man here, who has been ill for two weeks past, Sunday went to Little Rock where he will enter St. Vincent's hospital for treatment. He was accompanied by Mrs. Duckett who will remain with him.

The Duckett family, long residents here, are among the most prominent in the city's community life and many there are who wish for Mr. Duckett a speedy return to health.

Bingham Strikes Back At Accusers

Says Did Not Promise To
Name J. P.'s To Suit
Ring Head

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. — (AP) — Presentation of a resolution of censure for Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut was forecast in the Senate today at the close of two hours savage personal exchanges between the Connecticut senator and members of the lobby committee who condemned his relations with the Connecticut Manufacturers Association.

Chairman Norris, of the Judiciary Committee, who appointed the lobby committee, announced he intended to offer such a resolution shortly.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Striking back at his accusers, Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, contended in the Senate today that the lobby investigating committee had been "unfair" and had used "police court methods" in examining him regarding his employment of an officer of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association to assist him in tariff matters.

The Connecticut senator asserted the committee was "framed" against him because he was "a friend of the administration."

He said one member of the committee used a member of the capital police force as his chauffeur to drive him home while the policeman was still drawing government pay.

Community Sing Sunday Big Event

More Largely Attended
Than Any Similar Gathering In City.

The singing at City Hall Sunday afternoon was one of the more enjoyable events of its kind ever held here, attended by a crowd filling the spacious auditorium at City Hall, to capacity.

Among the organizations present were quartettes from Nashville, Washington, Prescott and from Wills Point, Texas. This latter organization is staying over for the week, doing concert work in the county and if you haven't heard them you've missed a vocal treat.

Deladrier Seeking Party Approval

Radical Socialists To Pass
On French Cabinet
Before Named

PARIS, Oct. 24. — (AP) — Edouard Deladrier, radical socialist leader told President Daumergue today that he was continuing his assigned task of forming a ministry but that he must await the decision of his Socialist colleagues now in convention before proceeding further.

The final decision, he said, would be made tonight at the session of the assembly of the party, headed by Leon Blum.

Hempstead County Boy On "Mule Rider" Staff

Class Hall, of Bingen, from one of the most prominent families in Hempstead county, is one among the most famous students at Magnolia A. & M. taking high rank in his scholastic work. He made the sophomore honor roll last week, and in addition has been named as one of the staff of the "Mule Rider" college annual.

Buying Display Space In Hope Star Will Bring New Customers To Stores

There are many ways of spending money for advertising. There are nearly as many ways of wasting it. If you are in business and want to attract shoppers to your place of business, you need newspaper advertising.

You cannot build up a business waiting for buyers; you must appeal to them regularly—吸引 them steadily. Many Hope stores are proving the truth of these statements every day. Here in Hope, you have the Hope Star, a newspaper that goes to most of the worthwhile buyers in this immediate trade territory. And this number of subscribers is growing steadily.

The most prominent merchants in every community buy newspaper space, and not space in everything that comes along. Your advertising in the Hope Star will be read by several thousand people in this trade territory. If your messages are interesting and timely they cannot help but attract trade to you, just as they do to those firms which are already big buyers of space in the Hope Star. They would not buy this space if it were not profitable to them.

Gasoline Tax To Reach $10,000,000 Annually Is Belief

Calculation Based On Gains Shown During the Past Three Years.

$7,000,000 THIS YEAR

Nearly Half That Sum Is Received In First
Two Months.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 28. — (AP) — Based on gains shown during the past three years, gasoline tax collections for Arkansas should reach $10,000,000 annually by 1931, according to a statement issued today by David A. Gates, commissioner of revenue.

Mr. Gates said collections for the fiscal year beginning last August 1 and running until next July 31, will approximate $7,000,000.

This figure was based on receipts for the first two months of this year and figures for other months of last year, the estimate being made on the assumption the next ten months will show as great percentage gain as August and September. Collections for the latter month already have exceeded $585,000 and with more yet to come, the month should show collections of slightly more than $600,000.

"The first four months of the present fiscal year will show collections of more than $2,400,000," Mr. Bates said. "The next four months should see collections totaling $2,000,000, and the last four months of the fiscal year, in my opinion, will produce approximately two and a half millions dollars."

Mr. Gates said in his opinion, the increase this year of approximately $1,000,000 in gasoline tax collections over the previous year, was due mostly to increased use of gasoline through completion of a large part of the present highway program.

"The estimated increase of 10 per cent per year in gasoline taxes collected will in itself almost produce $10,000,000 income in 1931," he said. "But aside from a normal increase, we must reckon with results produced by a completed highway system. In my opinion, when the present program is completed, the increase will be considerably above ten per cent, and I am confident my estimate of $10,000,000 gasoline tax revenue in 1931 is not at all too optimistic."

First Speed Crash At End South Main

Car Plunges Thru Fence
and Comes To Rest On Drake's Lawn.

Sunday afternoon about three o'clock a bunch of negroes coming into town from the Lewisville road and making about all the speed a Willys-Knight touring would develop, hit the end of paving on south end of Main street where the driver lost control of his car.

A young white boy by the name of Anderson, riding horseback, was near the scene and when the driver lost control did not have time to when his horse and escape collision with the auto. The horse was knocked down, young Anderson being heavily thrown and suffering a badly injured shoulder and hip.

The car plunged through an iron fence surrounding T. J. Drake's lawn, losing both wheels in the crash and coming to rest on the lawn.

The driver was arrested on a reckless driving charge and will be given a hearing today.

"Scotty" Comes Into His Own and Is Making Good

James Montgomery, otherwise "Scotty," has at last come into his own. For at the head of "College Profile," the Hendrix-Heuser school publication at Conway, we see emblazoned in bold letters, "James Montgomery, Managing Editor."

Atta boy, Jimmy! Stay right in there and pitch. I trust he is a lot different from the old days when you held a "leg desk" on the old Star, but it's all in the game—and you had rather play it than work at anything else.

But at that, "Scotty" Profile looks good. Make-up and selection of material reflects taste and ability and the gang in this shop, where you got your first whiff of printer's ink, extends congratulations.

Tommy Billingsley Is Reported Improving

Tommy Billingsley, who last week underwent an operation for appendicitis, is reported by his physicians as improving nicely, with every prospect for a speedy recovery.

For a time the young man's condition was regarded as extremely serious, fear being felt that the operation had been delayed too long, but he has rallied nicely and is rounding out shape in a way to delight hospital attendants.

Headlights For Baby Carriages

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 28. — Headlights and tail lights for perambulators, hand carts and sleds has just been suggested by the Swedish Association of Motor Bus Owners. This recommendation has been made in connection with a proposal to repeal the speed limit for automobiles.

The Association also has requested that motor buses be equipped in this regulation, because of the rapidly growing traffic and the demand for passengers for swift transportation.

'Second Bismarck' von Buelow Dead

House of Hohenzollern Is Loser One of War
Leaders

ROME, Oct. 28. — (AP) — Prince Bernhard von Buelow, once called the "second Bismarck," died early today at the villa left by his wife, the former Italian Princess Maria Beccadillo de Bolognese with whom he eloped in 1886.

Buelow was 80 years old and had had a brilliant military career, culminating in an important command with the German forces in the World war.

Court Affirms Death Sentence

Finds No Error In Trial of Aged Man for Slaying
Three Persons

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 28. — (AP) — The death sentence passed on W. H. Howell, 63, convicted of murder in connection with the triple slaying at the Crawford county infirmary near Van Buren several months ago, was affirmed by the Supreme Court today. Howell was convicted for murdering J. D. Nicholson, an aged inmate of the infirmary, and was charged but never tried for the slaying of Cliff Duffenbaugh and his wife, Duffenbaugh being superintendent of the institution.

Governor Parnell will set the date for the execution of the death sentence unless he should decide to commute it to life because of the advanced age of the defendant. It has been indicated that a strenuous effort would be made to have the Governor reduce the sentence.

The Supreme Court found no grounds for reversal of the lower court's judgment.

Howell had been an inmate of the infirmary a few months before the crime was committed and was said to have had prior trouble with Nicholson and Duffenbaugh.

Duffenbaugh, his wife and Nicholson were sitting in the living room at the infirmary when the slayer walked in with a shotgun and shot the three. The slayer escaped and shot the three. The circumstances pointed at the time. City of Little Rock was charged with the killing and he was arrested, tried and convicted of Nicholson's murder.

Tribute Rendered At Roosevelt Home

Ceremonies Held On 71st
Anniversary of President
Roosevelt's Birth.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Oct. 28. — (AP) — Nine airplanes, flying in V-formation and led by Col. Clarence D. Chamberlain, dipped over Oyster Bay yesterday in tribute to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt. Sunday was the 71st anniversary of his birth.

Starting from Roosevelt Field, which was named for the late president's son, Quentin, who was killed in France, the planes first dipped in salute over Colonel Roosevelt's birthplace on East Twenty-third street, Manhattan, then proceeded out over Long Island sound to Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, his last home.

Mrs. Roosevelt, two of her sons, Archibald and Kermit, and their children were on the lawn as the airplanes passed overhead.

The flowers dropped flowers over the colonel's grave nearby and then continued back to the flying field.

A bronze tablet bearing the inscription: "The pew of Theodore Roosevelt, 26th president of the United States, for 30 years, from July 1, 1883, until his death, January 6, 1919, now enfolded in his memory," was placed Sunday on the front of the pew which Roosevelt occupied in Christ Episcopal church, Oyster Bay.

Behind the tablet was placed a list of 125 who contributed to the memorial. The pew has not been occupied since Roosevelt's death. The family uses another.

Archibald Roosevelt unveiled the tablet. Kermit Roosevelt, Colonel Roosevelt's widow, Mrs. Richard Roosevelt, Derby (formerly Ethel Roosevelt) and Dr. Derby were present.

A laurel wreath sent by President Hoover was placed on Roosevelt's grave by Brig. Gen. Hugh Drum.

Loyalty Banquet Plans Perfected

Wins $75,000 From
Rich N. Y. Spanker

Kiwanis Club Is
Host On Tuesday
At Third of Series

Guests At Affair Will Be Prominent Farmers of Hope Territory.

EDUCATOR TO SPEAK

Director of School Research and Surveys To Be Honor Guest.

Joe Floyd, in charge of the program at the Loyalty Banquet to be held at the Capitol Hotel Tuesday night, announces that final plans have been perfected and that at eight o'clock tomorrow evening the third of a series of such gatherings will be under way. Sponsored at previous occasions by other civic organizations in the city, Kiwanis club will be in charge of this, having the loyal assistance of Rotary, B. & P. W. and the Chamber of Commerce.

Short talks will be made by Ed McFadden, for Rotary, John P. Cox, for Kiwanis and Roy Anderson, for the Chamber of Commerce. Guests will be some of the representative farmers from Hope's trade territory who will be accorded time to express themselves, the major address of the evening being by Howard Dawson, director of research and survey in the state department of education. The Magnolia A. & M. college orchestra will be the attraction for the evening, in a musical sense, Mr. Floyd announcing they have agreed to attend. Loyalty to home institutions of whatever kind—not lip-service but deep-rooted, working loyalty—will be stressed as one of the best calculated to tend to the development of this section of the country.

Game Commission Talks To Hunters

Makes Few Suggestions
By Which Nimrod May
Avoid Trouble.

On November 1, the season opens on ducks and geese for a three month period which ends January 31, 1930. The daily bag limit is 15 on ducks and eight geese.

The season does not open on fur-bearing animals until December 1, and it closes January 31, 1930. Hereafter this season has run from November 15 to January 31 but this was changed by the 1929 General Assembly.

It is pretty generally agreed that this is a wise change that will mean thousands of dollars in increased profits to hunters and trappers if they will abide by the law and not catch fur-bearers until their pelts are prime. All residents 18 or more years of age are required to have a hunting license to hunt any game or fur-bearing animals except squirrels and rabbits. Such license allows the use of 12 traps or dead-falls. If more than 12 traps or dead-falls are used, a trapping license is also required regardless of age. Hunting licenses may be secured from the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission or from any Circuit Clerk in the State who has settled for licenses issued by him during the past season.

It is well to remind our readers that a heavy toll of human life is sacrificed each hunting season thru avoidable accidents. Most of such accidents result from a gun in the hands of a careless or irresponsible person. Too often the gun that is "not loaded" is the most deadly.

The matter of observing bag limits and open seasons and getting proper license should not be overlooked. Sportsmanship should be sufficient motive for observing the game laws. Then, too, records reveal that for the first nine months of 1929 State Game Warden made 815 arrests from which 669 convictions were secured and fines assessed amounted to $11,292.50.

These are the distances to 93 globular clusters of stars. The light from the nearest travels more than 18,400 years before reaching earth, while that from the farthest takes 185,000 years.

All of them are part of the star system to which the earth belongs, the Milky Way. Outside this Milky Way astronomical telescopes already have photographed thousands of other universes of stars, some so remote that their light requires many millions of years to reach earth.

America's War Dead Start On Journey From Russia Where They Served In A.E.F.

LENINGRAD, Oct. 28. — (AP) With flag flying at half mast the Soviet steamer Lieutenant Schmidt, carrying the bodies of 86 American officers and soldiers who perished during the Archangel campaign of 1918 and 1919, steamed out of the harbor here Sunday for Harve France, while all Leningard was still asleep.

From Harve, American's honored dead will be transported homeward by an American battleship with impressive ceremonies.

The Soviet government was anxious to render full military honors to American's dead although the American expeditionary force at Archangel fought against the Bolshevik troops. Chairman S. Campbell of the American graves commission, who has left for Harve to arrange for receptions there of the bodies, decided, however that it was best for Michigan's fallen sons to leave Russia as quiet and unostentatiously as they had come in during the grim days of 1918.

Therefore the bodies of the 86 members of Detroit's 333rd infantry were borne from the stone pier up the gangplank of the Soviet steamer without sounding of reveille, without religious ceremony, and without funeral march. The entire work of the graves commission was performed so quietly that the Russian public was unaware of the members' presence. No mention of their activities was made in the Soviet papers.

When the grey bulk of the Soviet funeral ship, with the bodies aboard steamed from the Gulf of Finland, other Russian vessels lowered their flags in final salute to the dead.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Sid Henry

Telephone 321

Words can be such lovely things
They may be blue or gold,
Or of the kind that run and sing
Or dear ones often told.
Paths can be fascinating too,
If they lead around a bend,
And the loveliest path of all, I think,
Are the paths walked with a friend.
—Selected.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spragins. Mr. Spragins is superintendent of public schools in Fordyce.

In the Field with the County Agents

Results of Corn Variety Demonstration Carried by C. A. S. Bonds, Blevins, Ark.

Neils' Paymaster corn which is the variety of corn grown by 4-H Club members, in Hempstead county, made the highest yield of three varieties reports C. A. S. Bonds of Blevins, Ark. Last Spring Mr. Bonds planted Neils' Paymaster, Blevins' Silvermine, and a native variety of corn alongside each other on land which was of like fertility under directions of County Agent Lynn Smith and the final result was the following yield per acre:

1. Native variety 1400 lbs.
2. Blevins' Silvermine 1890 lbs.
3. Neils' Paymaster 2030 lbs.

While any of the yields are not high because that crop was planted after a radish crop had been harvested on the land and because the drought last summer damaged the later crop worth yet that comparative yields are such that it gives one an idea of what may be expected from the three varieties on land such as that like Mr. Bonds'. Several other demonstrations were put on over Hempstead County last spring, but as yet the results have not been reported. As soon as these reports are in, they will be published and from that time on should be able to get some idea about what may be expected in the way of yields from three varieties some of which are recommended by our Experiment Stations. According to County Agent Lynn Smith the Experiment Stations try out many varieties of corn and select a few which give the best yields; then ask that these higher yielding varieties be tried out under local conditions to determine which variety is best adapted to the particular locality in which each person lives.

The results of this demonstration would seem to indicate that Neils' Paymaster was the best variety to plant for large yield in the locality of Mr. Bonds.

Supreme Court To Pass On Wurzbach Matter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Proceedings brought by the government against Harry M. Wurzbach, republican, Texas, charging that he had used unlawfully contributions from federal officers in his campaign, was today held to be entitled to a Supreme Court review.

MOM'N POP

Some Picker

By Cowan

Soviets Execute 63 In Four Days

Firing Squad Is Fate If Convicted On Any Charge

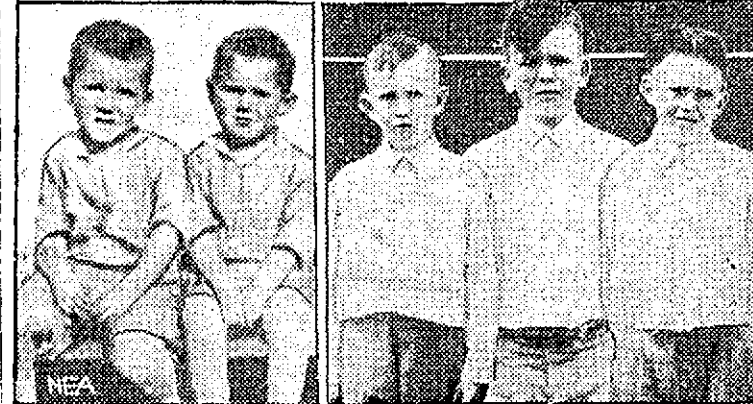

MOSCOW, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Two prominent Jewish diamond merchants Kleiner and Taitz, were executed by a firing squad today for smuggling diamonds out of Soviet Russia.

Burton Not Last Long Friends Say

Ohio Senator Is Unconscious and Death Only Matter of Hours

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Senator Theo. E. Burton, of Ohio, was still alive today but attendants said there had been no change in his condition, which is so critical friends

Seek Father Who Slew Five

These pictures show Charles King of Hamilton, O., and his wife and children, all of whom, with the exception of one of five sons, were asphyxiated by gas when King took the cap off a gas pipe in his home while the family slept. A note left by King before he disappeared led police to believe he intended to kill the entire family and then commit suicide, but police believe him still alive.

have abandoned hope for his recovery. Senator Burton was unconscious at noon but his physician said that his breathing and pulse were strong and it was regarded as likely he would live through the day.

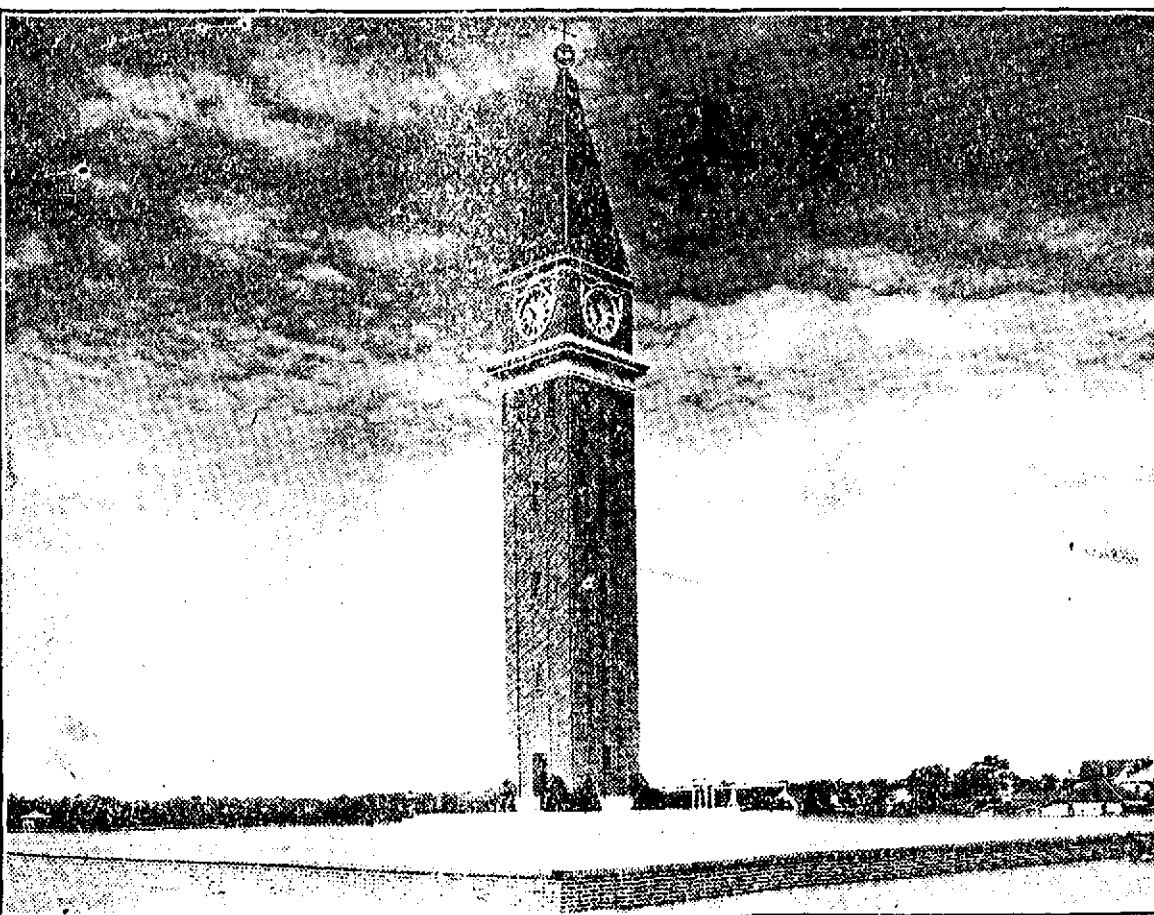

L. S. Thomas, of the Ladies Specialty Shop, made a business trip to Nashville, where he also has a ladies' apparel shop.

Sisters Take First Prizes

These two sisters strolled off recently with the first three prizes for calves at the Mid-South Fair and Southern Dairy Show at Memphis. They are Alice Clark, 18, at left, and Edith, 17, of Lowndes county, Miss. Alice won first prize with the calf shown between the two, and Edith captured second and third with her two animals.

Cotton Mill Employees Erect Beacon to Memory of Founder

Workers in the mill established by the late Fuller E. Callaway, at La Grange, Georgia, voluntarily raised the funds for the erection of this clock tower and airplane beacon, in memory of Mr. Callaway, who died two years ago.

EMPLOYEES in the cotton mill of Cason J. Callaway at La Grange, Georgia, have dedicated a beautiful clock tower and airplane beacon which they erected by voluntary subscription among themselves to the memory of Fuller E. Callaway, founder of the business. Mr. Callaway, an international figure in cotton textiles, died two years ago.

The tower, which stands in the center of an eight-acre park, landscaped by the employees, rises ninety-seven feet above the ground and overlooks La Grange. It is patterned after the Campanile of St. Mark in Venice.

An automatic candle-power revolving beacon surmounts the spire to guide visitors flying between Atlanta and New Orleans. There is also a directional light pointing the way to Callaway Air Field two miles distant. On each of the four faces of the tower is a clock.

Mr. Callaway announced his mill would close each year on his father's birthday, with pay to all workers, in order that the spirit manifested by them in erecting the memorial may be perpetuated.

Old Timers Show Youngsters of Coast League How To Play

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The youngsters furnished the flash and class in the Pacific Coast League this season but the old timers came through to grab off most of the honors.

Statistics tell this story: Ike Boone, San Francisco Mission Reds right fielder, led the league in batting with an unofficial average of .408, a new all time record. He also led in home runs with 57. Frank Shellenback, Hollywood right hander, captured pitching laurels for more than 20 games with a mark of .684. He won 26 games and lost 12. Veterans of the major leagues, each showed the way to some of the most promising young fellows developed in many seasons. Boone, the 30-year-old Tuscaloosa, Alabama "hammer," rode to fame on the crest of a base-hit tidal wave. His batting average bettered by four points the previous high mark of the circuit's 26 years of existence. His home run feat is the second best in the league's history. It is but three behind Tony Lazzeri's record, which the latter made while with Salt Lake City. Lazzeri has the benefit of a smaller park and reerified atmosphere. Boone's "bat busting" orgy follows two failures in big time baseball as a member of the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox. Once a pitcher for the Chicago White Sox and 28 years old, Shellenback "spit-balled" his way to leadership over a score of rookies who were expected to make baseball history this season. Other "vets who" refused to stay in the back ground were Bill Rumler, Hollywood outfielder, and Ike Caveney, San Francisco Seals second baseman. Each is well on his way to forty. Rumler came out of nine years retirement to clout the ball for a .388 average, giving him a tie for third place. Caveney, one time Cincinnati Reds star, fielded with the best of them and hit for an average of .334.

During November

You will find just what you want when you want it at our store.

Always prompt delivery service on the things you want. Try our service during November and you will be more than pleased.

John P. Cox Drug Company

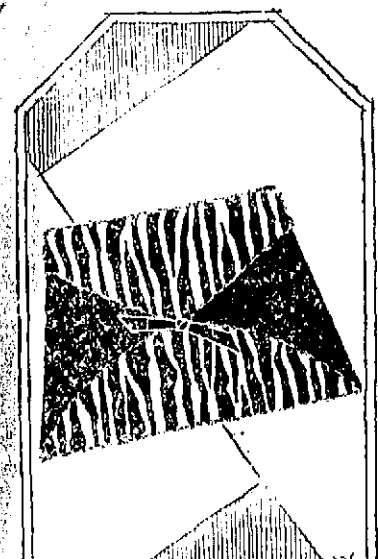

WE GIVE EAGLE STAMPS
PHONE 84

NEW GRAND MONDAY AND TUESDAY "Two Men and A Maid"

with William Collier, Jr. Alma Bennett Eddie Gribbon George E. Stone

It's a flaming Triangle Drama of Love and Hate Also Pathe News and Good Comedy Admission 10c and 25c

DARK BROWN zebra-striped fur and brown calf are combined in a smart fall bag.

SAENGER

TODAY AND TUESDAY

The story of a boy who married the wrong Girl!

Dick's follow - up to "Weary River." Two lovely leading ladies. Small town life in a honky tonk. Big time life on Broadway. A story you'll remember long after others are forgotten.

Richard Barthelmess IN DRAG

ALL TALKING SINGING!

3 Acts Vitaphone Talking Singing Vaudeville

Carlana Diamond Harpest Supreme "Symphony" with All Star Cast

THE BLUE ROGERS with Cecilia Mayberry

Millions of Miles of Constant Testing

to maintain the outstanding quality and dependability of The Chevrolet Six

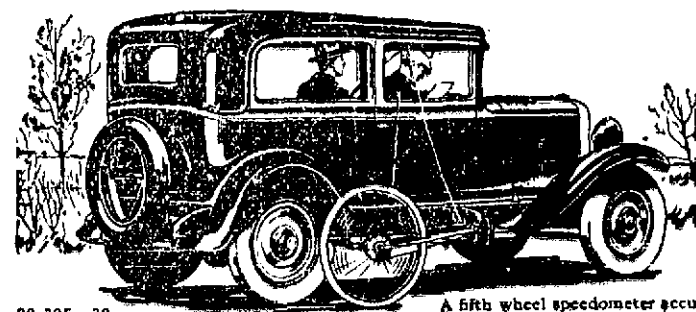

In spite of the fact that a million Chevrolet Sixes have already been placed in the hands of owners, and have proved their performance and stamina by billions of miles of service over every type of highway the nation affords—

—the Chevrolet Motor Company continues to take new Chevrolet Sixes from the assembly line at the factory and subject them to pitiless testing on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground!

This passion for proof—this consistent refusal to accept any tests as final—is one of the fundamental reasons for the overwhelming popularity of Chevrolet cars. For in no other way is it possible to make the Chevrolet Six so sound in design and materials—so dependable in performance—and so economical to operate!

If you are considering the purchase of an automobile, come in and see the new Chevrolet. You will find that it is more than a Six in the price range of the four. In every way it is a finer car than you ever thought possible in the low-price field!

The COACH 595

The ROADSTER.....$525	The Sedan.....$695
The PHAETON.....$525	The Sedan Delivery.....$595
The COUPE.....$595	The Light Delivery Coupe.....$400
The Sport Coupe.....$645	The 1 1/2 Ton Chevrolet.....$545
The SEDAN.....$675	The 1 1/2 Ton Chevrolet with Cab.....$650

All prices f.o.b. factory, Flint, Mich.

Young Chevrolet Co.

A SIX IN THE PRICE RANGE OF THE FOUR

The Avenging Parrot

© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Wives," etc.

NUMBER THREE—

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Bonnie Dundee, nephew of Police Commissioner O'Brien, gets a job as "club" detective under Lieutenant John Strawn of the homicide squad of Hamilton. While Dundee is in O'Brien's office, a letter arrives signed by Mrs. Emma Hogarth asking for police protection, saying her money and life are in danger. She places special emphasis on Emil Sevier, a former boarder in the Rhodes boarding house where she lives.

O'Brien and Strawn call her a "nut" but Dundee asks permission to take the case. He rents a room at the Rhodes boarding house, where Mrs. Hogarth boards. His room is on the third floor, as are the rooms of Jewell Briggs, public stenographer, away for the week-end; Daisy Shepherd, saleswoman in a local store; and Tilda, the housemaid. At dinner Dundee is introduced to the other boarders: Mr. and Mrs. Sharp, Cora Barker, pianist in a local theatre; Walter Styles, proprietor of a men's haberdashery; Norma Paige, his pretty fiancée; Bert Magnus, bookkeeper and amateur scenario writer; and David, middle-aged and nondescript. Dundee, impressed by the friendliness of these ordinary people, is beginning to believe Mrs. Hogarth's suspicions are ill-founded when a strangely horrible cry rings out: "Help! Murder! Police!"

Dust Rhodes, worthless husband of Mrs. Rhodes, assures the boarders the cry came from Cap'n. Mrs. Hogarth's parrot. Dundee is told of Mrs. Hogarth's miserliness, how she is room-bound because of heart trouble, and of her constant changing of her will to name a new favorite. Norma, who is her latest favorite, agrees to introduce Dundee to the "woman of mystery" that night.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER III

So it was decided before dessert was reached, that Bonnie Dundee was to be introduced to Mrs. Hogarth that evening. Satisfied that the prospective meeting had been adroitly arranged, the young detective inquired leaned back in his chair and studied his fellow-boarders keenly.

If, by chance, old Mrs. Hogarth was right and her life really in danger, what an opportunity he now had to observe all of his possible suspects before the crime was attempted or committed! But that was a foolish thought, he told himself sharply. It was his job to see that the crime was not committed. Why, that was what he was there for—not to suffer palpitation of the heart because a remarkably pretty girl, whom he had never seen before that evening, smiled at him adorably. Besides she was already engaged to that Styles chap. Though what she could see in him. Oh, of course, Styles was good looking enough, with that smooth, thick brown hair and those candid eyes. But were they candid? Walter Styles didn't look quite so happy and care-free as a newly engaged man is supposed to look. Maybe Styles had got himself engaged to Norma Paige just to make sure of the old lady's money, which he had lost when the will had been changed in the girl's favor. Suppose that was why he looked so—well, preoccupied now. Had the was so, Dundee told himself with jubilant hopefulness, maybe Styles would break the engagement.

"Bert, you are not eating a thing!" It was Cora Barker's voice, full of mingled anxiety and tenderness, that jerked Bonnie Dundee back from his day-dreaming though the words were not addressed to him, but to the man on his left, Magnus. His name was, wasn't it?

"Too hot to eat, Cora," Bert Magnus

He was soon to learn.

"Bert, tell me!" she commanded urgently, leaning as far across the table as possible. "Have you heard from your scenario?"

"Hasn't anyone told you yet?" Magnus asked, rather irritably. "I supposed it was common gossip by this time that the story was—returned—today. Not even a rejection slip. In fact, the envelope hadn't been opened or the studio wants to pretend it had not."

"Oh, Bert!" Cora's voice was heavy with disappointment and sympathy. "And it's such a wonderful scenario, too! I bet they did open it, and had it copied, so they could steal your plot! You just wait! I bet I look up from my piano some day next winter and see your story unwinding on the screen!" She turned her indignant black eyes upon Bonnie Dundee.

"Mr. Magnus writes scenarios, Mr. Dundee, and you can take my word for it that this story of his that came back today is better than nine out of 10 movies I have to look at. I play the piano in a movie theater over on Grand street, you know."

There was nothing but sympathy in Dundee's eyes as he turned to Bert Magnus. "I say—I'm awfully sorry, you got a rotten break on your story, old man. Have you—sold any yet?"

"I had a very encouraging letter from the scenario school whose course I subscribed to," Magnus evaded stiffly. "Well—if you'll excuse me I'll go up and do some work. I'm a bookkeeper, so I only have my evenings to write in, and because of this—" and he held up his right hand, whose thin, unassuming-looking fingers seemed to be permanently curled like the petals of a withered flower—"I can't make much progress on the typewriter, so I have to keep plugging away pretty steadily. I've got a new slant on that story, Cora. I'm almost glad they sent it back. I'll be better than ever when it goes out again."

"Why, Bert!" It was almost a cry of anguish from Cora, and Dundee was startled. "Have you forgotten you promised to see that show to-night? You won't work too late, will you? The second show starts at 9, you know."

"I'm afraid I had forgotten," Magnus confessed, smiling feebly and mopping the oily sweat from his face. "This heat—Listen, Cora! Suppose I go to the first show instead of the second, then maybe it will be cooler, and I can get some good work done on the story."

"But you promised to take me out to supper after the theater closes," Cora reminded him.

The mild, plumpish man seemed to be looking for a way to escape. Then he brightened. "Tell you what, Cora, I'll go along with you now and see the first show, then come back here and work on my story till time to meet you at 11."

The glow of happiness on Cora's dark, intense face was almost embarrassing to Dundee. "That will be fine, Bert!" she cried. "But don't get impatient if you have to wait awhile for me. We have a new violinist, and I'll have to go over the score of the music for the new feature picture with him before it's shown tomorrow. It may be as late as half-past 11 when I'm through."

"Then I'll meet you at half-past 11," Bert assured her. "What happened to Sevier? Fired?"

Cora's nostrils flared and a queer expression crossed her face. "Yes," she answered briefly.

"Then other people besides Mrs. Hogarth must think Emil Sevier's a bad egg," Mr. Sharp, who had been listening unabashed, cut in. "This fiddler, Sevier, had the room next to the old lady," he explained to Dundee, "and she had Mrs. Rhodes kick him out. We never knew the straight of it," he added regretfully, "but it seems that the old lady got it into her head that Cora's boy friend—"

"He's not my 'boy friend'!" Cora Barker denied vehemently.

"Well, was your boy friend then," Mr. Sharp corrected himself amiably. "Anyway seems like the old lady got it into her head that Sevier was plotting to rob her of her money. Guess he was behind a week or two with his board anyway, and Mrs. Rhodes told him his room was more welcome than his company. Mr. Henry Dowd, our talkative new boarder, has Sevier's old room and they do say he nearly talks the old lady to death."

"This was obviously intended to be very humorous, for Henry Dowd had not spoken during the entire meal, except to ask for salt of bread.

Sharp, I've never met Mrs. Hogarth."

He spoke now, "As you know, Mr. Dundee laughed. "Then you're not as curious as I am, Mr. Dowd."

The thin, commonplace man took off his glasses and polished the rimless oval lenses very deliberately. "I mind my own business," he said quietly.

"I've never met Mrs. Hogarth either, but after hearing the story all over again this evening, I'm beginning to get curious myself," Bert Magnus admitted. "You're always telling me to put some comedy in my scenarios, Cora. Maybe I'll look in on her this evening, if Dundee will give me an introduction."

To Dundee's relief, but also to his bewilderment, Cora Barker interrupted with passionate vehemence: "Don't call on Mrs. Hogarth this evening, Bert! Promise me you won't!"

Mrs. Rhodes, advancing rather majestically to the table to inquire if her guests had enjoyed their dinner, prevented Cora's getting the promise she had begged for so strongly.

ears had told him that Cora Barker was in love with this man, and he wondered what sort of person, her restless, passionate heart had chosen. He saw a man of medium height, dark-brown rather oily hair going a little thin on top; light-grey eyes, behind rimless pince nez; a stubby, reddish mustache, many shades lighter than his hair. Neither handsome nor homely; just another man, say 35 years old. What did Cora Barker find in him, Dundee wondered?

He was soon to learn.

"Bert, tell me!" she commanded urgently, leaning as far across the table as possible. "Have you heard from your scenario?"

"Hasn't anyone told you yet?" Magnus asked, rather irritably. "I supposed it was common gossip by this time that the story was—returned—today. Not even a rejection slip. In fact, the envelope hadn't been opened or the studio wants to pretend it had not."

"Oh, Bert!" Cora's voice was heavy with disappointment and sympathy. "And it's such a wonderful scenario, too! I bet they did open it, and had it copied, so they could steal your plot! You just wait! I bet I look up from my piano some day next winter and see your story unwinding on the screen!" She turned her indignant black eyes upon Bonnie Dundee.

"Mr. Magnus writes scenarios, Mr. Dundee, and you can take my word for it that this story of his that came back today is better than nine out of 10 movies I have to look at. I play the piano in a movie theater over on Grand street, you know."

There was nothing but sympathy in Dundee's eyes as he turned to Bert Magnus. "I say—I'm awfully sorry, you got a rotten break on your story, old man. Have you—sold any yet?"

"I had a very encouraging letter from the scenario school whose course I subscribed to," Magnus evaded stiffly. "Well—if you'll excuse me I'll go up and do some work. I'm a bookkeeper, so I only have my evenings to write in, and because of this—" and he held up his right hand, whose thin, unassuming-looking fingers seemed to be permanently curled like the petals of a withered flower—"I can't make much progress on the typewriter, so I have to keep plugging away pretty steadily. I've got a new slant on that story, Cora. I'm almost glad they sent it back. I'll be better than ever when it goes out again."

"Why, Bert!" It was almost a cry of anguish from Cora, and Dundee was startled. "Have you forgotten you promised to see that show to-night? You won't work too late, will you? The second show starts at 9, you know."

"I'm afraid I had forgotten," Magnus confessed, smiling feebly and mopping the oily sweat from his face. "This heat—Listen, Cora! Suppose I go to the first show instead of the second, then maybe it will be cooler, and I can get some good work done on the story."

"But you promised to take me out to supper after the theater closes," Cora reminded him.

The mild, plumpish man seemed to be looking for a way to escape. Then he brightened. "Tell you what, Cora, I'll go along with you now and see the first show, then come back here and work on my story till time to meet you at 11."

The glow of happiness on Cora's dark, intense face was almost embarrassing to Dundee. "That will be fine, Bert!" she cried. "But don't get impatient if you have to wait awhile for me. We have a new violinist, and I'll have to go over the score of the music for the new feature picture with him before it's shown tomorrow. It may be as late as half-past 11 when I'm through."

"Then I'll meet you at half-past 11," Bert assured her. "What happened to Sevier? Fired?"

Cora's nostrils flared and a queer expression crossed her face. "Yes," she answered briefly.

"Then other people besides Mrs. Hogarth must think Emil Sevier's a bad egg," Mr. Sharp, who had been listening unabashed, cut in. "This fiddler, Sevier, had the room next to the old lady," he explained to Dundee, "and she had Mrs. Rhodes kick him out. We never knew the straight of it," he added regretfully, "but it seems that the old lady got it into her head that Cora's boy friend—"

"He's not my 'boy friend'!" Cora Barker denied vehemently.

"Well, was your boy friend then," Mr. Sharp corrected himself amiably. "Anyway seems like the old lady got it into her head that Sevier was plotting to rob her of her money. Guess he was behind a week or two with his board anyway, and Mrs. Rhodes told him his room was more welcome than his company. Mr. Henry Dowd, our talkative new boarder, has Sevier's old room and they do say he nearly talks the old lady to death."

"This was obviously intended to be very humorous, for Henry Dowd had not spoken during the entire meal, except to ask for salt of bread.

Sharp, I've never met Mrs. Hogarth."

He spoke now, "As you know, Mr. Dundee laughed. "Then you're not as curious as I am, Mr. Dowd."

The thin, commonplace man took off his glasses and polished the rimless oval lenses very deliberately. "I mind my own business," he said quietly.

"I've never met Mrs. Hogarth either, but after hearing the story all over again this evening, I'm beginning to get curious myself," Bert Magnus admitted. "You're always telling me to put some comedy in my scenarios, Cora. Maybe I'll look in on her this evening, if Dundee will give me an introduction."

To Dundee's relief, but also to his bewilderment, Cora Barker interrupted with passionate vehemence: "Don't call on Mrs. Hogarth this evening, Bert! Promise me you won't!"

Mrs. Rhodes, advancing rather majestically to the table to inquire if her guests had enjoyed their dinner, prevented Cora's getting the promise she had begged for so strongly.

ears had told him that Cora Barker was in love with this man, and he wondered what sort of person, her restless, passionate heart had chosen. He saw a man of medium height, dark-brown rather oily hair going a little thin on top; light-grey eyes, behind rimless pince nez; a stubby, reddish mustache, many shades lighter than his hair. Neither handsome nor homely; just another man, say 35 years old. What did Cora Barker find in him, Dundee wondered?

He was soon to learn.

"Bert, tell me!" she commanded urgently, leaning as far across the table as possible. "Have you heard from your scenario?"

"Hasn't anyone told you yet?" Magnus asked, rather irritably. "I supposed it was common gossip by this time that the story was—returned—today. Not even a rejection slip. In fact, the envelope hadn't been opened or the studio wants to pretend it had not."

"Oh, Bert!" Cora's voice was heavy with disappointment and sympathy. "And it's such a wonderful scenario, too! I bet they did open it, and had it copied, so they could steal your plot! You just wait! I bet I look up from my piano some day next winter and see your story unwinding on the screen!" She turned her indignant black eyes upon Bonnie Dundee.

"Mr. Magnus writes scenarios, Mr. Dundee, and you can take my word for it that this story of his that came back today is better than nine out of 10 movies I have to look at. I play the piano in a movie theater over on Grand street, you know."

There was nothing but sympathy in Dundee's eyes as he turned to Bert Magnus. "I say—I'm awfully sorry, you got a rotten break on your story, old man. Have you—sold any yet?"

"I had a very encouraging letter from the scenario school whose course I subscribed to," Magnus evaded stiffly. "Well—if you'll excuse me I'll go up and do some work. I'm a bookkeeper, so I only have my evenings to write in, and because of this—" and he held up his right hand, whose thin, unassuming-looking fingers seemed to be permanently curled like the petals of a withered flower—"I can't make much progress on the typewriter, so I have to keep plugging away pretty steadily. I've got a new slant on that story, Cora. I'm almost glad they sent it back. I'll be better than ever when it goes out again."

"Why, Bert!" It was almost a cry of anguish from Cora, and Dundee was startled. "Have you forgotten you promised to see that show to-night? You won't work too late, will you? The second show starts at 9, you know."

"I'm afraid I had forgotten," Magnus confessed, smiling feebly and mopping the oily sweat from his face. "This heat—Listen, Cora! Suppose I go to the first show instead of the second, then maybe it will be cooler, and I can get some good work done on the story."

"But you promised to take me out to supper after the theater closes," Cora reminded him.

The mild, plumpish man seemed to be looking for a way to escape. Then he brightened. "Tell you what, Cora, I'll go along with you now and see the first show, then come back here and work on my story till time to meet you at 11."

The glow of happiness on Cora's dark, intense face was almost embarrassing to Dundee. "That will be fine, Bert!" she cried. "But don't get impatient if you have to wait awhile for me. We have a new violinist, and I'll have to go over the score of the music for the new feature picture with him before it's shown tomorrow. It may be as late as half-past 11 when I'm through."

"Then I'll meet you at half-past 11," Bert assured her. "What happened to Sevier? Fired?"

Cora's nostrils flared and a queer expression crossed her face. "Yes," she answered briefly.

"Then other people besides Mrs. Hogarth must think Emil Sevier's a bad egg," Mr. Sharp, who had been listening unabashed, cut in. "This fiddler, Sevier, had the room next to the old lady," he explained to Dundee, "and she had Mrs. Rhodes kick him out. We never knew the straight of it," he added regretfully, "but it seems that the old lady got it into her head that Cora's boy friend—"

"He's not my 'boy friend'!" Cora Barker denied vehemently.

"Well, was your boy friend then," Mr. Sharp corrected himself amiably. "Anyway seems like the old lady got it into her head that Sevier was plotting to rob her of her money. Guess he was behind a week or two with his board anyway, and Mrs. Rhodes told him his room was more welcome than his company. Mr. Henry Dowd, our talkative new boarder, has Sevier's old room and they do say he nearly talks the old lady to death."

"This was obviously intended to be very humorous, for Henry Dowd had not spoken during the entire meal, except to ask for salt of bread.

Sharp, I've never met Mrs. Hogarth."

He spoke now, "As you know, Mr. Dundee laughed. "Then you're not as curious as I am, Mr. Dowd."

The thin, commonplace man took off his glasses and polished the rimless oval lenses very deliberately. "I mind my own business," he said quietly.

"I've never met Mrs. Hogarth either, but after hearing the story all over again this evening, I'm beginning to get curious myself," Bert Magnus admitted. "You're always telling me to put some comedy in my scenarios, Cora. Maybe I'll look in on her this evening, if Dundee will give me an introduction."

To Dundee's relief, but also to his bewilderment, Cora Barker interrupted with passionate vehemence: "Don't call on Mrs. Hogarth this evening, Bert! Promise me you won't!"

Mrs. Rhodes, advancing rather majestically to the table to inquire if her guests had enjoyed their dinner, prevented Cora's getting the promise she had begged for so strongly.

ears had told him that Cora Barker was in love with this man, and he wondered what sort of person, her restless, passionate heart had chosen. He saw a man of medium height, dark-brown rather oily hair going a little thin on top; light-grey eyes, behind rimless pince nez; a stubby, reddish mustache, many shades lighter than his hair. Neither handsome nor homely; just another man, say 35 years old. What did Cora Barker find in him, Dundee wondered?

He was soon to learn.

"Bert, tell me!" she commanded urgently, leaning as far across the table as possible. "Have you heard from your scenario?"

"Hasn't anyone told you yet?" Magnus asked, rather irritably. "I supposed it was common gossip by this time that the story was—returned—today. Not even a rejection slip. In fact, the envelope hadn't been opened or the studio wants to pretend it had not."

"Oh, Bert!" Cora's voice was heavy with disappointment and sympathy. "And it's such a wonderful scenario, too! I bet they did open it, and had it copied, so they could steal your plot! You just wait! I bet I look up from my piano some day next winter and see your story unwinding on the screen!" She turned her indignant black eyes upon Bonnie Dundee.

"Mr. Magnus writes scenarios, Mr. Dundee, and you can take my word for it that this story of his that came back today is better than nine out of 10 movies I have to look at. I play the piano in a movie theater over on Grand street, you know."

There was nothing but sympathy in Dundee's eyes as he turned to Bert Magnus. "I say—I'm awfully sorry, you got a rotten break on your story, old man. Have you—sold any yet?"

"I had a very encouraging letter from the scenario school whose course I subscribed to," Magnus evaded stiffly. "Well—if you'll excuse me I'll go up and do some work. I'm a bookkeeper, so I only have my evenings to write in, and because of this—" and he held up his right hand, whose thin, unassuming-looking fingers seemed to be permanently curled like the petals of a withered flower—"I can't make much progress on the typewriter, so I have to keep plugging away pretty steadily. I've got a new slant on that story, Cora. I'm almost glad they sent it back. I'll be better than ever when it goes out again."

"Why, Bert!" It was almost a cry of anguish from Cora, and Dundee was startled. "Have you forgotten you promised to see that show to-night? You won't work too late, will you? The second show starts at 9, you know."

"I'm afraid I had forgotten," Magnus confessed, smiling feebly and mopping the oily sweat from his face. "This heat—Listen, Cora! Suppose I go to the first show instead of the second, then maybe it will be cooler, and I can get some good work done on the story."

"But you promised to take me out to supper after the theater closes," Cora reminded him.

The mild, plumpish man seemed to be looking for a way to escape. Then he brightened. "Tell you what, Cora, I'll go along with you now and see the first show, then come back here and work on my story till time to meet you at 11."

The glow of happiness on Cora's dark, intense face was almost embarrassing to Dundee. "That will be fine, Bert!" she cried. "But don't get impatient if you have to wait awhile for me. We have a new violinist, and I'll have to go over the score of the music for the new feature picture with him before it's shown tomorrow. It may be as late as half-past 11 when I'm through."

"Then I'll meet you at half-past 11," Bert assured her. "What happened to Sevier? Fired?"

Cora's nostrils flared and a queer expression crossed her face. "Yes," she answered briefly.

"Then other people besides Mrs. Hogarth must think Emil Sevier's a bad egg," Mr. Sharp, who had been listening unabashed, cut in. "This fiddler, Sevier, had the room next to the old lady," he explained to Dundee, "and she had Mrs. Rhodes kick him out. We never knew the straight of it," he added regretfully, "but it seems that the old lady got it into her head that Cora's boy friend—"

"He's not my 'boy friend'!" Cora Barker denied vehemently.

"Well, was your boy friend then," Mr. Sharp corrected himself amiably. "Anyway seems like the old lady got it into her head that Sevier was plotting to rob her of her money. Guess he was behind a week or two with his board anyway, and Mrs. Rhodes told him his room was more welcome than his company. Mr. Henry Dowd, our talkative new boarder, has Sevier's old room and they do say he nearly talks the old lady to death."

"This was obviously intended to be very humorous, for Henry Dowd had not spoken during the entire meal, except to ask for salt of bread.

Sharp, I've never met Mrs. Hogarth."

He spoke now, "As you know, Mr. Dundee laughed. "Then you're not as curious as I am, Mr. Dowd."

The thin, commonplace man took off his glasses and polished the rimless oval lenses very deliberately. "I mind my own business," he said quietly.

"I've never met Mrs. Hogarth either, but after hearing the story all over again this evening, I'm beginning to get curious myself," Bert Magnus admitted. "You're always telling me to put some comedy in my scenarios, Cora. Maybe I'll look in on her this evening, if Dundee will give me an introduction."

To Dundee's relief, but also to his bewilderment, Cora Barker interrupted with passionate vehemence: "Don't call on Mrs. Hogarth this evening, Bert! Promise me you won't!"

Mrs. Rhodes, advancing rather majestically to the table to inquire if her guests had enjoyed their dinner, prevented Cora's getting the promise she had begged for so strongly.

ears had told him that Cora Barker was in love with this man, and he wondered what sort of person, her restless, passionate heart had chosen. He saw a man of medium height, dark-brown rather oily hair going a little thin on top; light-grey eyes, behind rimless pince nez; a stubby, reddish mustache, many shades lighter than his hair. Neither handsome nor homely; just another man, say 35 years old. What did Cora Barker find in him, Dundee wondered?

He was soon to learn.

"Bert, tell me!" she commanded urgently, leaning as far across the table as possible. "Have you heard from your scenario?"

"Hasn't anyone told you yet?" Magnus asked, rather irritably. "I supposed it was common gossip by this time that the story was—returned—today. Not even a rejection slip. In fact, the envelope hadn't been opened or the studio wants to pretend it had not."

"Oh, Bert!" Cora's voice was heavy with disappointment and sympathy. "And it's such a wonderful scenario, too! I bet they did open it, and had it copied, so they could steal your plot! You just wait! I bet I look up from my piano some day next winter and see your story unwinding on the screen!" She turned her indignant black eyes upon Bonnie Dundee.

"Mr. Magnus writes scenarios, Mr. Dundee, and you can take my word for it that this story of his that came back today is better than nine out of 10 movies I have to look at. I play the piano in a movie theater over on Grand street, you know."

There was nothing but sympathy in Dundee's eyes as he turned to Bert Magnus. "I say—I'm awfully sorry, you got a rotten break on your story, old man. Have you—sold any yet?"

"I had a very encouraging letter from the scenario school whose course I subscribed to," Magnus evaded stiffly. "Well—if you'll excuse me I'll go up and do some work. I'm a bookkeeper, so I only have my evenings to write in, and because of this—" and he held up his right hand, whose thin, unassuming-looking fingers seemed to be permanently curled like the petals of a withered flower—"I can't make much progress on the typewriter, so I have to keep plugging away pretty steadily. I've got a new slant on that story, Cora. I'm almost glad they sent it back. I'll be better than ever when it goes out again."

"Why, Bert!" It was almost a cry of anguish from Cora, and Dundee was startled. "Have you forgotten you promised to see that show to-night? You won't work too late, will you? The second show starts at 9, you know."

"I'm afraid I had forgotten," Magnus confessed, smiling feebly and mopping the oily sweat from his face. "This heat—Listen, Cora! Suppose I go to the first show instead of the second, then maybe it will be cooler, and I can get some good work done on the story."

"But you promised to take me out to supper after the theater closes," Cora reminded him.

The mild, plumpish man seemed to be looking for a way to escape. Then he brightened. "Tell you what, Cora, I'll go along with you now and see the first show, then come back here and work on my story till time to meet you at 11."

The glow of happiness on Cora's dark, intense face was almost embarrassing to Dundee. "That will be fine, Bert!" she cried. "But don't get impatient if you have to wait awhile for me. We have a new violinist, and I'll have to go over the score of the music for the new feature picture with him before it's shown tomorrow. It may be as late as half-past 11 when I'm through."

"Then I'll meet you at half-past 11," Bert assured her. "What happened to Sevier? Fired?"

Cora's nostrils flared and a queer expression crossed her face. "Yes," she answered briefly.

"Then other people besides Mrs. Hogarth must think Emil Sevier's a bad egg," Mr. Sharp, who had been listening unabashed, cut in. "This fiddler, Sevier, had the room next to the old lady," he explained to Dundee, "and she had Mrs. Rhodes kick him out. We never knew the straight of it," he added regretfully, "but it seems that the old lady got it into her head that Cora's boy friend—"

"He's not my 'boy friend'!" Cora Barker denied vehemently.

"Well, was your boy friend then," Mr. Sharp corrected himself amiably. "Anyway seems like the old lady got it into her head that Sevier was plotting to rob her of her money. Guess he was behind a week or two with his board anyway, and Mrs. Rhodes told him his room was more welcome than his company. Mr. Henry Dowd, our talkative new boarder, has Sevier's old room and they do say he nearly talks the old lady to death."

"This was obviously intended to be very humorous, for Henry Dowd had not spoken during the entire meal, except to ask for salt of bread.

Sharp, I've never met Mrs. Hogarth."

He spoke now, "As you know, Mr. Dundee laughed. "Then you're not as curious as I am, Mr. Dowd."

The thin, commonplace man took off his glasses and polished the rimless oval lenses very deliberately. "I mind my own business," he said quietly.

"I've never met Mrs. Hogarth either, but after hearing the story all over again this evening, I'm beginning to get curious myself," Bert Magnus admitted. "You're always

A PAGE of SPORT NEWS

Fans Ask Leavelle To Match New Man Here With Cotton Valley Welter

Generally Believed Causey and Pierce Would Develop A Real Scrap and Many Express Desire To See Them Get Together.

"Smilin' Joe" Causey, junior welter who blew in last week and was introduced at the ring last Friday night, will likely be one of those who sling a few leather-clad whallops around next Friday night. Leavelle, yielding to demand of fans to see him in action and trying to get that lad Pierce, from Cotton Valley, up to swap wallops with him.

Causey bears the marks a fighter of some ability and handles himself like a veteran. In his work-outs he is showing plenty speed and his sparring partners say has a kick in either fist. This being true, he ought to make Mr. Pierce step high, wide and handsome—which is something that Louisiana can do, if he has to, as he has demonstrated here on more than one occasion. For instance, when he took Jack Stacy to a cleaning, he out-weighted and out-reached Stacy—but at that he had to be good to beat him. Causey and he, of similar build, ought to stage a corking good show. Fans are still talking of last Friday night's show in which Hall and Mitchell played the lead. And they are howling long and loud, demanding that Johnny Hall stack up against one Buck Williams, a little aged by considerable tough if you'll believe Johnny Celmar—and Johnny isn't given any to lying. "That Williams negro is fast," says Celmar. "Fast and smart. Knows the game and can take a world of punishment. It will be a toss-up as to which will win if he meets Hall, but it will also be the best fight Hope fans have ever seen."

There was pandemonium on the diamond, but the crowd stayed. They waited for the signal that the presidential party had gone. Then they tore loose with one of the wildest demonstrations ever seen at a world series ball game.

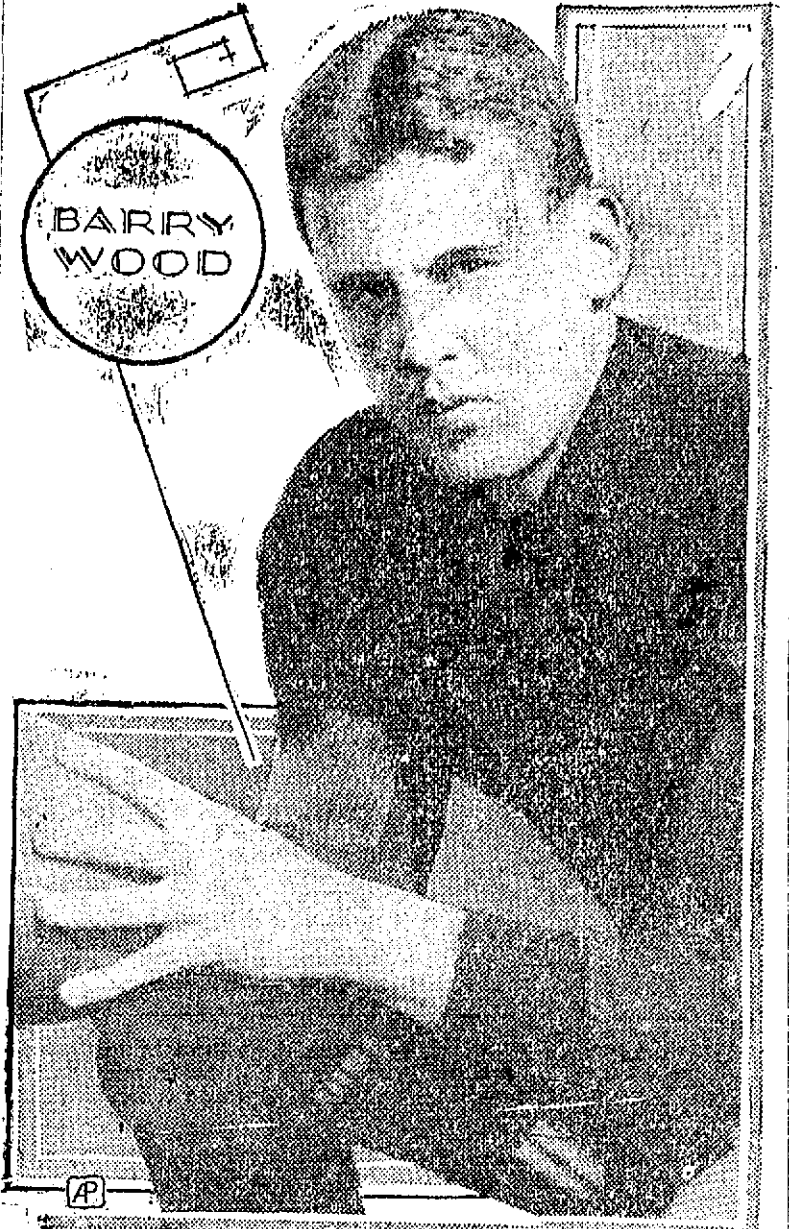

Bucky on the Job
Bucky Harris has been told to go ahead and reconstruct at Detroit. Harris plans several changes, with Fothergill slated to go, according to talk among newspapermen at the world series games in Philadelphia. Heilmann has been sold to the Cincinnati Reds.

Bill Carrigan, after years of managing the Boston Red Sox, is said to have all he craves, the way of that kind of work. The club is not in a position to spend money for players, and Bill has gradually lost his enthusiasm for trying to win ball games without them. His resignation this year was regarded as practically certain. Carrigan owns a bank up in Maine.

Mushroom Picker Wanders Thru Whine of Shells

SALISBURY, England, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Gathering mushrooms under shell-

Barry Wood Raps Loudly At Door To Sports Fame

Just "graduated from the yearling class at Harvard, Barry Wood is the new found joy of Harvard, both faculty and students, alike, through his scholarly brilliance and amazing versatility as an athlete.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28.—(AP)—This Barry Wood, the Harvard sophomore, whose spectacular pass enabled the Crimson to tie Army, hits 'em just as hard in the classroom as he does on the athletic field. And that's saying something, for following up a good start. During his freshman year he served as president scholar-athlete of his university. He was quarterback and captain of the freshman football team which was undefeated last year. He played a good game as forward on the freshman hockey team and won his numeral. He played shortstop on the baseball team and was the mainstay of the infield. He batted .450 and hit safely in every game. He was just as good at tennis. He was one of two Americans to win a match in the series with the Oxford-Cambridge team and further distinguished himself in the national singles by taking a set from Johnny Doe, the Coast's star southpaw. His big moment in varsity football his first year out came when Coach Arnold, Horween called Harvard's pony backfield into action in a last-period drive against Army.

Here was 19-year-old second team quarterback called in to outwit one of the most formidable football teams in the country. It was up to Wood to get a touchdown and get it quickly. If he failed he would be among those mentioned in the list of substitutes.

He didn't fail. He threw a 50-yard pass that connected for a touchdown and then drop-kicked for the extra point, giving the Crimson a tie.

Paris' Latest Story Is "The X-Ray'll Git You"

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Paris is filled with X-ray goblins these days. They are pictured as silent, invisible rays of death, filtering through apartment walls into homes all over the city. The basis in fact for the rumors is the practice of French professional men of having their laboratories and offices in their homes.

So the extent to which it may be possible for X-rays to penetrate the homes of neighbors has aroused the imaginations of laymen. Extremists demand that physicians sheath their offices in protective lead.

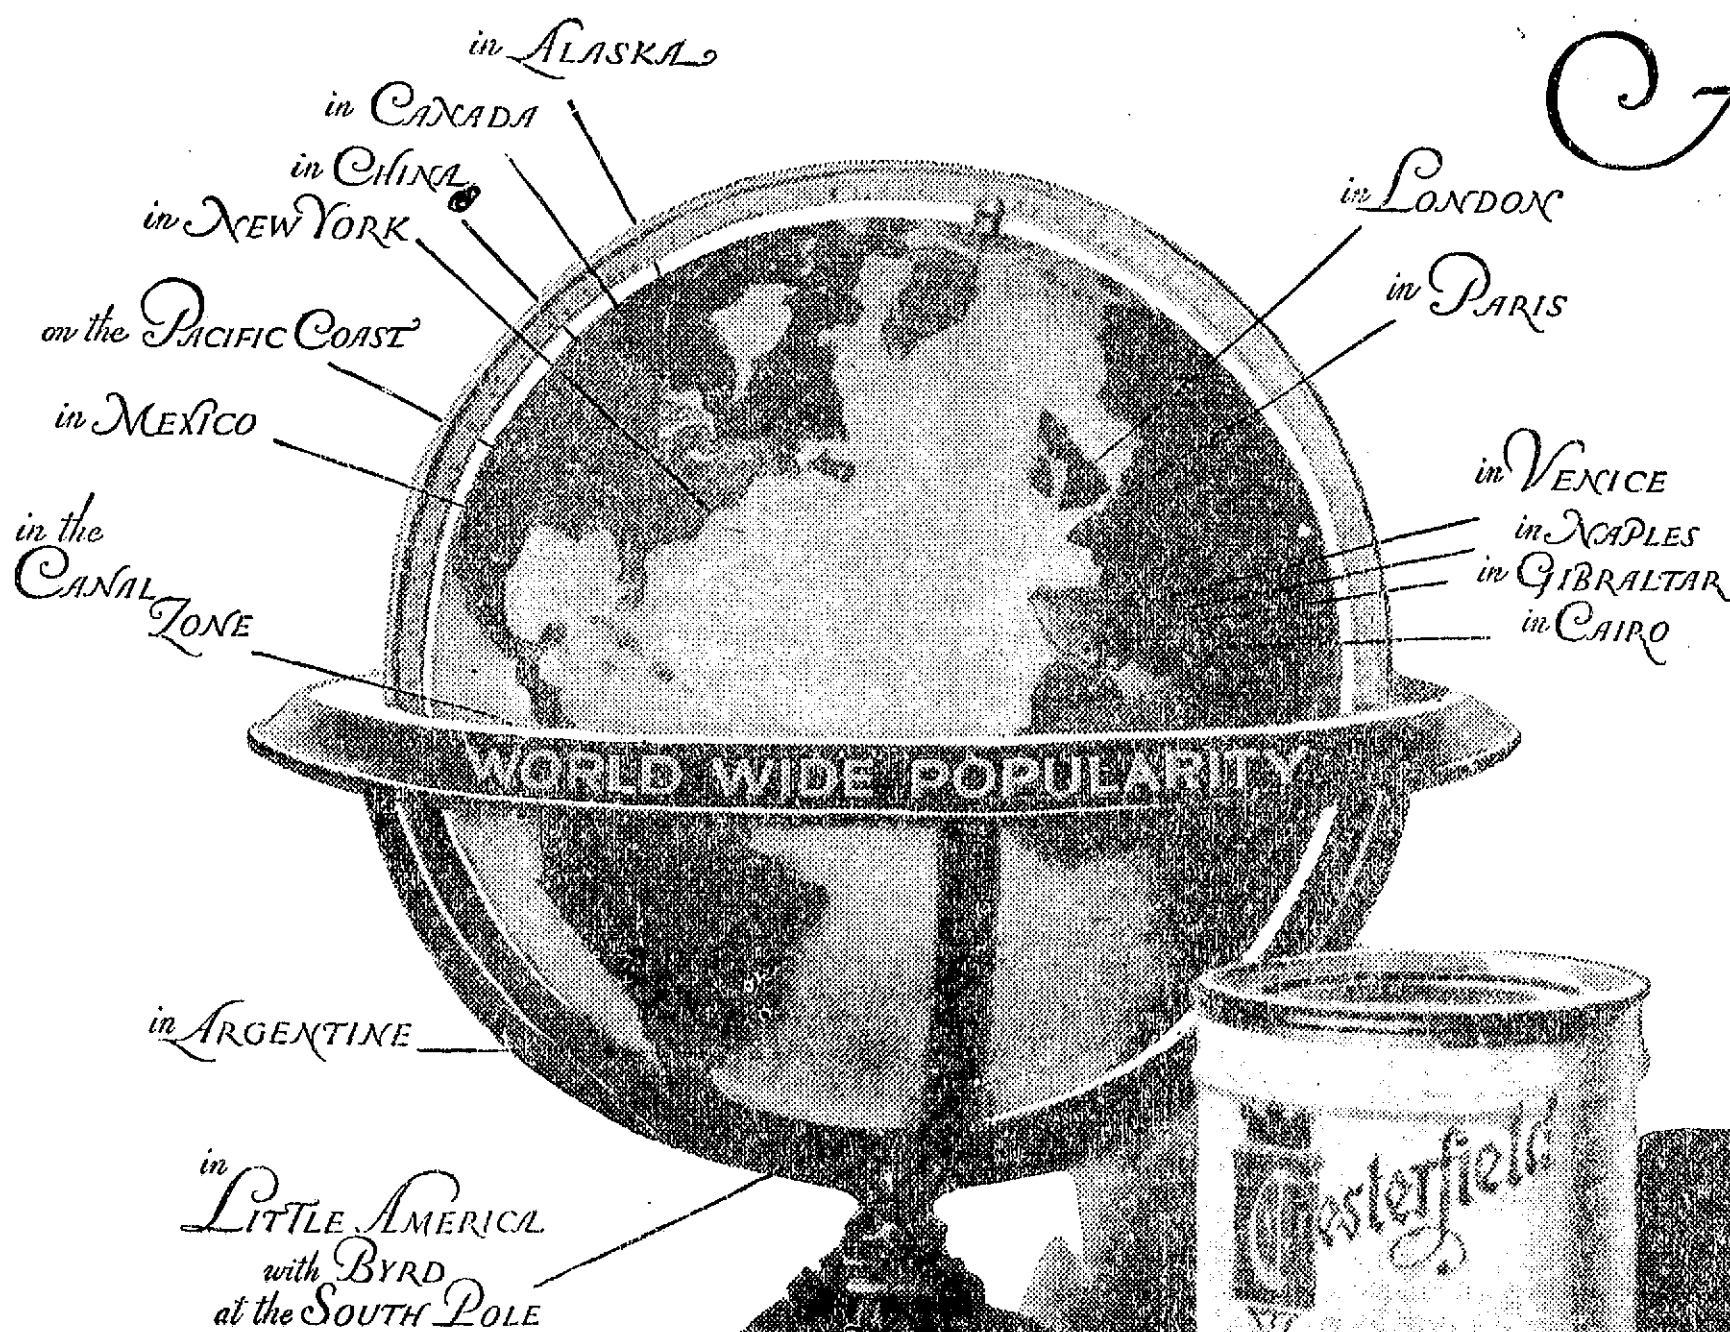

OUT OUR WAY

By Williams

REG U S PAT OFF WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

J. WILLIAMS © 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. J. 1029

All over the world

...in a cigarette it's TASTE!

AN official South American commission reports Chesterfield's blend as the "most desirable." In the Canal Zone, that international crossroads, Chesterfield is far and away the favorite. Tourists write of deliciously fresh Chesterfields in India, or that it is the one American brand in this or that French village.

Good taste knows no frontiers. All over the world you find appreciation of Chesterfield's unchanging standard:

"TASTE above everything"

Chesterfield

SUCH POPULARITY MUST BE DESERVED

MILD, yes... and yet THEY SATISFY

SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE

Subscribers to the Hope Star should receive their paper before 6:15 each evening. Please call 768, and notify the circulation manager when ever carrier fails to leave a paper or fails to put the paper on the porch. A special delivery will be made of all missed papers provided the complaint is made before 6:45 p. m.

Buy It! Rent It! Sell It! Find It!

WANT ADS

Count five words to the line. Rates 10c per line for one insertion, minimum 30c. 7c per line for three insertions, minimum 50c. 6c per line for six or more insertions. 5c per line for 25 insertions.

PHONE 768

FOR RENT

FOR RENT—Rooms with board. Phone 625. Mrs. W. T. Garner. 13-4tc

FOR RENT OR SALE—Seven room house, close in, garage and barn. Apply Mrs. T. C. Jobe. 6-6tc

FOR RENT—Lewis farm, 1 1/2 miles west of Hope, 38 1/2 acres. Good house, water, barn and land. See Talbot Field. 9-6tc

WANTED

WANTED—POSITION—Experienced stenographer, ready to start at once. Address X. Care Hope Star 13-31-p

WANTED—If you have furniture to sell, call 351. I will pay highest prices. P J Drake. 305-3tc

WANTED TO BUY—White tip radishes, stringless beans. Hope Fruit Growers Association. 9-2tc

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—The most gorgeous and beautiful Crysanthemums in white, pink and yellow. Call Lillie Middlebrooks. 13-1f-c

50 acre dairy and chicken farm 1-2 mile from city limits, on highway 87. One brick bungalow, one tenant house, large stock and dairy barn, filling station, store and tourist camp. The rent will run around $800.00 this year. I can sell it worth the money. If interested see Floyd Porterfield. 10-3tc-c

FOR SALE—The most gorgeous and beautiful Crysanthemums in white, pink and yellow. Call Lillie Middlebrooks. 13-1f-c

Green Tomatoes. Middlebrooks Grocery, 112tpd.

FOR SALE—McFadden Springs (Hot Springs) Water. Middlebrooks Grocery Co. Phone 608. 6-6tc-c

Green Tomatoes. Middlebrooks Grocery, 112tpd.

FOR SALE—Thirty head of sheep. Four and one half miles from Hope on Spring Hill road. See McAdams & Roberts. 10-6tpd.

Sweet Peppers. Middlebrooks Grocery, 11-21-pd.

FOR SALE—Mrs. Kelly's brick home on West 2nd street, 150 ft. front, with 11 rooms and two baths, garage, hardwood floors downstairs. Fine for home or apartment. This property is high class and in business district. I have a price that I consider low. If interested would like to show you through. See Floyd Porterfield. 10-3tc-c

FOR SALE—Full blood Jersey male. Eligible to registration. S. P. Field. On Spring Hill road, south of Hope. 12-61-pd.

LOST

Strayed or Stolen—Light blue possum dog named Sport. Disappeared last Friday night. Reward for return to Meredith Jones, Josephine street, Hope. 13-3tc

THE SOLES OF A NATION

Korry Krome and Panco

Soles' shoes, half soled $1.00

Shoes dyed any color 25c

MARTIN & JESTER

Phone 829 108 E. Third

Watson's Old Stand

MULES

We have several customers with good mules for sale. They want Farmall Tractors. Bargains—1 to 1 carload.

South Arkansas Implement Company

PERSONAL MENTION

Harry Boyd, Frisco conductor running out of Hope, came in Saturday afternoon from a trip to Savannah, Ga., where he had gone as representative of the O. R. C. to place one of their number in the home. Mr. Cook, the old conductor whom Mr. Boyd took over, worked out of Hope many years ago and will be remembered by many of the older citizens.

J. T. Bowden, Jr., Hervey Holt and Howard Waddle were home over the week end from Arkadelphia where they are attending Ouchita.

Wallace Cook, who is attending Henderson State Teachers College at Arkadelphia, spent Sunday with home folks.

Marlin Gresham, of Okay, visited his brother, Prince Gresham Sunday.

Terrel Cornelius made a business trip to Okay this morning.

L. S. Parker, a druggist of Hot Springs, has been visiting in Hope the past few days.

Mrs. Audrey Young, beauty culture specialist at the White Way Beauty Shop, returned Sunday from Little Rock where she was called to be with her mother who was last week reported seriously ill but is greatly improved now.

Wild Scenes Again In Stock Exchange

Leading Issues Off $5 To $45 Per Share Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Strong financial support was rushed again today to the stock market after another gigantic selling movement had carried prices of the leading issues down from $5 to nearly $45 per share. The decline, which started promptly at the opening of the market and gained momentum as the session progressed was checked early this afternoon after many active stocks had been driven below the low level established in last Thursday's record-breaking session and after the ticker had fallen more than an hour behind the market.

Total sales reached 5,547,900 shares at 1:30 p. m., with indications that the day's total would run close to ten millions.

Violence Breaks Again In Street Car Strike

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Street car strike violence broke out again here early today with the bombing of two homes which, police said, were occupied by non union motor-men and conductors of a street car. Both houses were damaged but the occupants escaped unhurt.

Dr. Carl's Discovery Stops Gas, Constipation

In his private practice, Dr. Carl Wescheke first perfected the simple mixture now known as Adlerika. On both most remedies, Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes old poisons you would never believe were in your system. Stops GAS bloating in 10 minutes! Relieves chronic constipation in 2 hours! Let Adlerika give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning and see how good you feel! It will surprise you! John S. Gibson Drug Store.

Backache

If functional Bladder Irritation disturbs your sleep, or causes Burning or Itching Sensation, Backache, Leg Pains, or muscular aches, making you feel tired, depressed, and discouraged, why not try the Cystex 48 Hour Test? Don't give up. Get Cystex today. Put it to the test. See for yourself how quickly it works and what it does. Money back if it doesn't bring quick improvement, and satisfy you completely. Try Cystex today. Only 60c. John S. Gibson Drug Co.

NOTICE

The reassessment of Street Improvement District No. 1 has been filed in my office, and the same is now open for inspection.

FRED WEBB

Recorder

Oct. 21-28

Vapor-Cooked PLATE LUNCH 25c (Lots of vitamins) MORELAND'S

Building and Loan Money

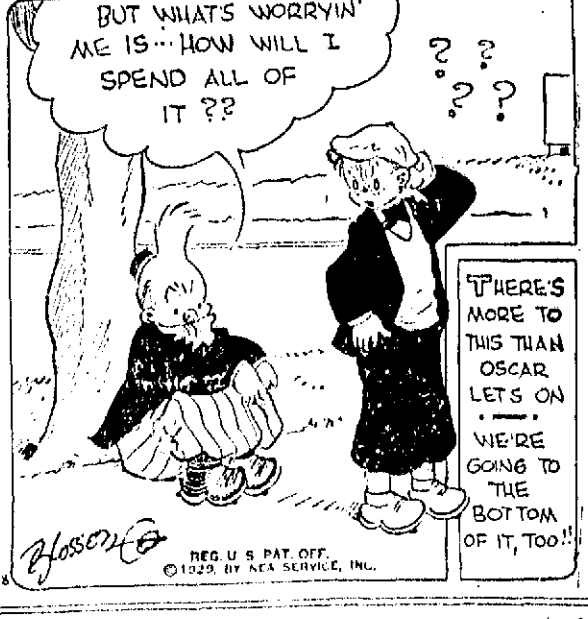

Good Company. Low rate of interest. Long time and small payments. See me if you want a loan.

W. P. Agee

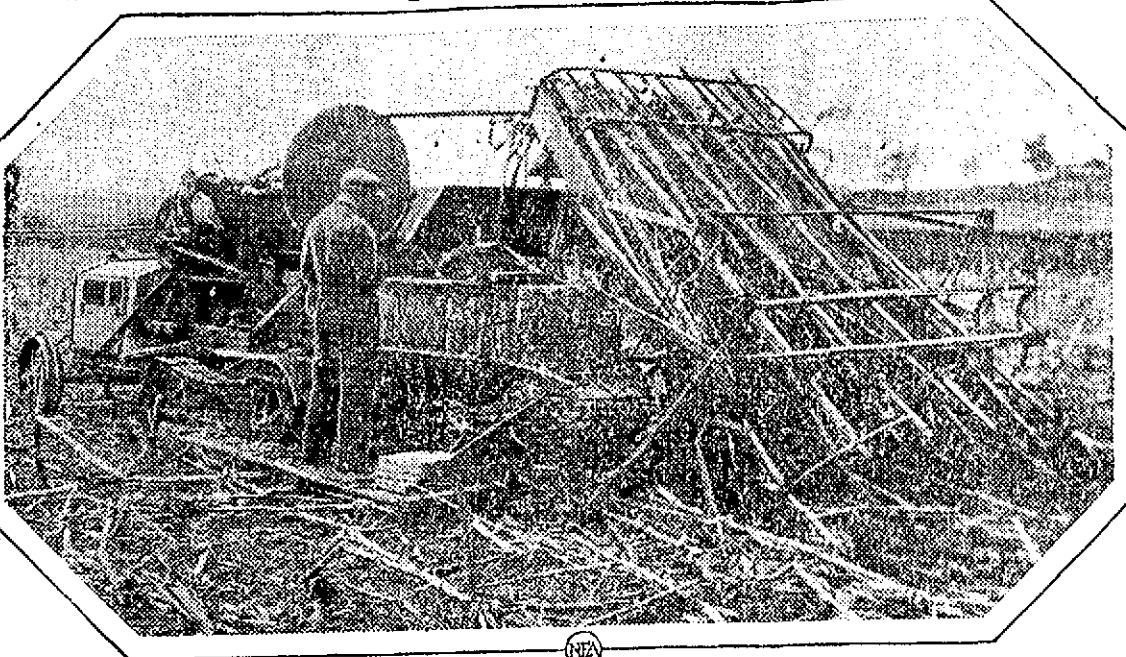

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Hasn't $500, But—

Mud Can't Stop This Cornstalk Harvester

A new cornstalk harvester, pictured above, has been developed by engineers at Iowa State College, Ames. This machine has been designed for working efficiently in muddy fields. It travels at from 10 to 15 miles an hour, cutting and baling the stalks and getting them ready to be taken to paper or wallboard plants.

New York's Sky Squad

They're fly cops of 1929. Some of New York's aerial policemen whose job it'll be to patrol the skies are pictured above as they reported at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, to begin their training. They'll be ready at an instant's notice to fly in pursuit of blue sky stock salesmen and other high type criminals.

Farm Demonstration Work Begun As An Emergency Measure In State

Farm demonstration work was first started as an emergency measure to help farmers in the cotton belt combat the boll weevil a quarter of a century ago, when that pest first menaced the cotton fields of the South. The measure of success achieved in the education in better farm practices and the introduction of new methods proved the value of these demonstrators to be so great that they became established in the agricultural program of the federal government and of every state government, far outliving the emergency they were first called to meet.

Now county extension agents are leaders in every branch of agricultural development and are prominent in all constructive educational efforts to enlarge farm income through lowering costs of production, increasing amounts of production, establishing more satisfactory markets, and making the farm home a pleasant place to live.

There are now 5,500 extension agents in the United States helping to pass on to the farmers of their communities the information that special training has put in their possession. It is through these agents that national and state research workers are able to give to the man on the farm the results of years of study and experimentation. The confidence of farm people in these agents is evidence of the value of the service that they have been rendering for the past twenty-five years.

Tax payers examine carefully every item of public expense and ask as they have the right to do, "Does it pay?" A careful estimate placed the money return for maintenance of extension agents in Arkansas as five dollars for every dollar invested. Certainly this rate of profit to the farmers of the state should be satisfactory, but the greatest values of extension work cannot be measured in dollars and cents. One of its outstanding values is the educational program carried on through the boys and girls in 4-H club work. This work keeps farm boys and girls satisfied on the farm. It gives them the advantage of travel daily over established routes in many sections picking up cans of milk from the roadside for delivery at a cheese factory or creamery. The acreage of hay crops has increased and legume crops are generally planted. The yield of cotton has been maintained and the additional crops and income from livestock supplement the cash from cotton.

Behind most of these changes can be found the aggressive leadership of trained extension workers, who have been aided by the progressive citizens of both the farms and towns.

Let Me Re-build Your Shoes

Work called for and delivered. P. J. Sutton Shoe Shop 105 W. Division Phone 329

IN PAIN, WEAK, NERVOUS, CROSS

But After Taking Cardui, Lady Says She Feels "Better Than In Years."

Huntalo, N. C.—"Since I took Cardui, I am no longer bothered with weak, nervous spells," says Mrs. Sam Laughlin, of this place. "For about fifteen years, I suffered from weakness. Sometimes it grew so bad I had to go to bed."

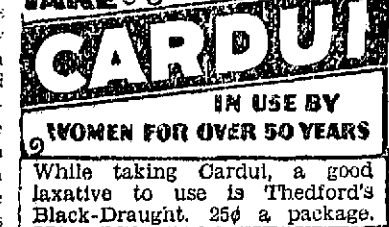

"I did not have strength enough to walk around the house. I was constantly complaining, and was as nervous and cross as I could be. My back and sides ached, and I was very low-spirited."

"I tried two or three things that were suggested to me, but they did not seem to help."

"Someone said 'Try Cardui,' and told me how other women had been helped by it. I consented to take it for a while. She said I began to feel stronger. I was hungry at mealtime, and much less nervous."

"This pleased me so much that I continued taking Cardui for several months, and at the end of that time I felt better than I had in years. I slept well and had a good appetite."

Cardui may help you, too. N-179

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

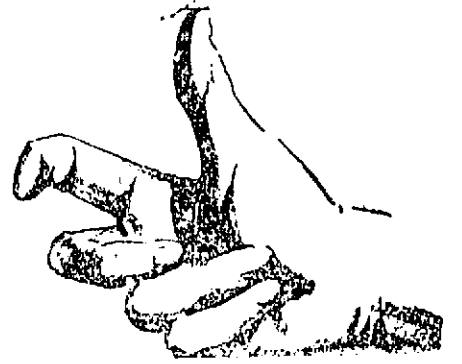

FOR THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

WANTED-- 1000 New Subscribers

The more subscribers in the HOPE TERRITORY this newspaper is able to secure, the greater results we can deliver to advertisers, and the more advertising they will place with us. That's why we offer two newspapers for country people for less than the price of one.

-for about 1¢ a day

Mail subscribers can now subscribe to day, and get the Arkansas Farmer for the Hope Star for less than one cent a one year, both for only $2.95 per year. This offer may be with drawn soon. And it only applies to rural readers in Hempstead, Nevada, Howard, Miller and LaFayette counties. Remember, Mail subscribers only.

BARGAIN RATE

If you are already a subscriber, you can take advantage of this offer, and have your subscription advanced one year from the time it will expire, by sending in the coupon now, along with your check. Where else can you get more reading matter that is of vital interest to you, for the money? What other newspapers are more interested and concerned in you than the Hope Star, and the Arkansas Farmer.

Hope Star and Arkansas Farmer

The regular price of the Hope Star (by mail) is $3.00 per year. The regular price of the Arkansas Farmer is 50c per year. These two newspapers should be on every library in this section. Both 1 year for only—

$2.95

Weekly Star and Arkansas Farmer

The regular price of the Hope Weekly Star is $1.50 per year. Mailed every Thursday morning, it is a weekly review of the local news of the Hope Star. Hope Weekly Star, and Arkansas Farmer, both for one year—

$1.00

Mail This Coupon Today

HOPE STAR, Hope, Arkansas Gentlemen:—

Please find enclosed $ (check or money order) for which please send both the ARKANSAS FARMER for one year, and also (check which)

— THE DAILY HOPE STAR — THE WEEKLY HOPE STAR

NAME

R. F. D. AND BOX

TOWN

STATE

New Subscriber

or Renewal Subscriber

Hope Star

Weekly Star